

The Nebraska Corona Bible - A Final Update!

It's been four years!

On a late Saturday night in 2020, a few weeks after the world stood still, I was still trying to find a word to preach for Palm Sunday, when a story in my inbox piqued my interest: A colleague from my native Switzerland, Rev. Uwe Habenicht, had launched this project to copy the complete Bible by hand, as a community effort by members of his community.

I was immediately intrigued. The idea seemed crazy — and yet so simple. And therefore exactly what was needed.

See: the COVID-19 pandemic catapulted faith communities into the digital world. As it turned out: our modern technologies proved to be extraordinary tools to stay connected.

Overnight, ordinary faith leaders became “televangelists” — often against their inclination and despite their lack of training. And the adaptive work we saw at play was nothing short of impressive!

And yet, we also knew that digital-only ministry wasn't for everyone. This is why this project so deeply resonated with me: Writing by hand is analog, tactile, simple. An old school technology that requires nothing more than pen and paper. At the same time, it is also an ancient spiritual practice: People have copied holy texts for centuries. In monasteries, scribes spent many cold winter months in the scriptorium, lettering the text, illuminating it with illustrations, and sometimes adding peculiar comments in the margins. And those who had experience copying sacred texts kept pointing to a centering effect that transcended time and place.

I loved the idea of doing this in community, as a coordinated effort of individuals each writing a passage. As we used to say in the beginning of the pandemic: “We're all in this together.” Here, people were weaving once again their sacred story together. Beyond anything else, this project seemed hopeful: a way of creating something beautiful in the midst of a chaotic time.

So today, I am pleased to announce the Nebraska Corona Bible Update we've all been waiting for: the Nebraska Corona Bible is complete! Our very own adaptation of this endeavor of hand copying all 1,189 chapters of the Christian Scriptures was completed by the hands of 483 individuals from all across Nebraska or with some kind of connection to the Cornhusker state. They are believers of all stripes, as well as folks who don't call a particular faith their own. At the time, some were as young as 9 years old, some in their nineties. Some are saints who have since passed on.

Over the next couple weeks we invite you to come have a look at a printed version at the church. (Or, you may want to acquire your own copy - whether a printed or a digital version.) You will find simple handwriting next to calligraphy and true works of art. And yes, if you search for them, you will find typos, duplicates, or skipped lines, too. It is not a work of perfection, but a labor of love. Something beautiful we have done together.

I want to express my deep and sincere gratitude to everyone who made this project a reality with their contribution:

Thank you to each individual writer, to those who helped sort and review, and those who kept nudging me with questions like, “When is the Corona Bible finally done?” (You know who you are.)

Thank you to my colleague in Switzerland, Rev. Uwe Habenicht, for his permission to adapt his idea to our Nebraska context.

Thank you to my friends, the Rev. Adam White, former campus minister at Lutheran Center (ELCA) at UNL, as well as Mother Amanda Gott, former rector at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church who were the first to jump on this project.

Thank you to Larry Moon and his team at The Printer, Lincoln, for their wonderful work and patience.

Thank you to the session and congregation of Eastridge Presbyterian Church for their support of this crazy idea.

Recently, I read this challenge by theologian and author Miroslav Volf:

"How might it be possible of us to live beautiful lives, lives of dignity and goodness, lives that have weight and meaning even in circumstances that, like fierce and stubborn enemies, conspire to rob us of joys and envelop us in the sooty grayness of desolation?"

May the Nebraska Corona Bible be just one attempt to answer this challenge.

Easter Sunrise, 6:45 am - Walking the Sunrise Road

"Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark..."

Once again this year, we will begin our Easter celebration by walking into the sunrise (hopefully!) on the Sunrise Road.

We will meet at 6:45 am under the awning in front of Eastridge Presbyterian church, and then begin walking along Sunrise Road all the way to Taylor Park. The walk measures about 1 mile, so please dress appropriately. We will make stops along the way to hear the gospel reading, and walk in a pace that allows to reflect on prompts. At the picnic shelter at Taylor Park we will enjoy some coffee and donuts together.

We hope you will join us, as we long to meet the Rising Son on the Sunrise Road.

LiNKed Spring Sermon Series!

There is no doubt that the Apostle Paul struggled with and for his faith in Jesus Christ. In 2 Corinthians, we get a glimpse of Paul's working through those struggles as he writes to the communities in Corinth. Join us this April and May as we move through this letter and discover how our connections give us strength through forgiveness, hope, faith, reconciliation, and generosity. We are LiNKed!
